Barbara Little

Government Relations
Washington, DC

Barbara Little has been managing Albemarle's government relations in Washington, DC since 1994 where she is responsible for promoting Albemarle's commitment to producing environmentally sound and high performance chemicals to legislators and regulators. In this role, Ms. Little collaborates with members of Congress and the Federal government to promote and develop national standards that ultimately result in a cleaner environment and safer products for the consumer. In achieving these goals, Ms. Little participates with her counterparts in the chemical industry as well as other industry sectors to create coalitions that foster common objectives.

Prior to joining Albemarle, Ms. Little held positions in the White House, the U.S. Senate and managed a U.S. Congressional campaign.

Ms. Little has her undergraduate degree in history and political science from Goucher College in Towson, Maryland.

Enriching lives. Protecting the planet.
